“ Lara and Gayle: I heard Monday afternoon. Daddy (Abb Burns) adored A.L. and spoke highly of him often. Daddy said they had the best time of their lives working the pens at Pecos Valley feed pens / also Diamond A. Daddy said they played tricks on everybody they could think of constantly. They made ridiculous bets on whose horse was the strongest and could pull down the heaviest steer and bull on the lot. They chewed tobacco from sun up to sun down. Home was more like a hotel than anything; just a place to sleep for a spell. Daddy's been gone since 1988. A.L. will be missed.

But this old cowboy's dif'rent it's the way I've always been, cause the time that gets me smilin' is the time for headin' in.

With a day of work behind me and before the sunset ends, it's a quiet and peaceful feelin' on the trail while headin' in.

There's a breeze that often comes up as a warm, southwestern wind, and a glow across the prairie as I'm slowly headin' in.

Above a hawk is wheelin' swoopin' down then up again, as if he wants one final look 'fore he too is headin' in.

My saddle pal don't say much but he tells me with a grin, he feels about the same as me with our ponies headin' in.

Someday this'll all be over just the prairie, grass and wind, I hope He'll let me pass this way when it's time for headin' in. Rod Nichols

Knowing A.L. was a pleasure in our lives. Seeing him when he delivered pipe, doing fiberglass on tanks or at church. Was always good to visit with him. Another true old cowboy in heaven and will not be bucked off again. May God bless each of you.*
