GOING HOME Born again yes I am, My Lord came and took me by the hand, His path I will dwell on For eternity For this strong hold of love in my heart It shines only for him It's he who saved me It's he who took me in It's he who forgave me For my every sin I will walk in his way And it's his strength that will let me not stray He is my refuge, salvation, and strength He will protect me from all evil who taunt Me and plot against me For my love for him will make me rise And he will make my enemy fall And I know it's he who hears me when I call I love him so much I just can't wait Until the day comes, and I'll walk through his gate, There he will hold me And welcome me home And there will be everlasting peace Where my God will sit on his throne, And that's when I'll be at home sweet home. Love your daughter, Cynthia Cobb “ My Mother's name was Marie Dunn and she and Aloha we're the very best of friends. Marie passed away two years ago and I just received her address book with Aloha's and smiled. I am glad they are with the higher power together as friends forever.

May God's faithfulness in prayer and supplication be for all that have suffered a loss.
Deepest sympathy for the loss. Keep the faith and never lose sight of the living knowledge of faith. Knowledge without faith, is just knowledge. Great is His faithfulness to Die is to glory in the after life.
Peace I leave with ya'll. In His Faithful Service, Victor Madrid
