“ Advise was the best mother-in-law a woman could ask for. She was kind and patient. She kept in touch after my divorce from her son to keep up with her granddaughters and offer me support. There were times I was closer to her than to my own mother. I will always be grateful for her.

“ She was the most wonderful grandmother. I will always love her dearly and miss her. She was so patient and loving with her grandchildren. She always had true interest in reading, playing, and interacting with us. I never once heard her say "not right now" or "I'm tired". When we became adults, she offered advice when asked, and was such a good listener. Thank you Grandma, for everything that you did for us. I am so thankful for it all.

“ Please accept my most heartfelt sympathy. I'll never forget the wonderful meals she cooked and shared with us on Christmas Eve. She was strong and wise, and gave me excellent advice over the years. The girls have many happy memories of her rocking them in the rocking chair and playing with them in her home. She will be sorely missed.
