“ We met Jennifer and Javier when our children played baseball together, it wasn't by chance our children were always on the same team. We became friends during that time, at times when we had our kids playing at separate fields we would take turns being with eachothers kids making sure they were ok. She never wanted to be away from her children. I am blessed to have known her and her family. There is a time for everything in this world, including a time to die. Our days are predestined from the womb. Jennifer made the best of her time here on Earth and that is an example she has left for all those who knew her to follow. You will be greatly missed.
