“ My love. Growing up with you over the past years and having you in my life meant everything to me. You showed me life so beautifully and made me a better person through all your love you shared with me. You were the one that whenever I would turn to, you we’re there always pushing me forward in life, picking me up when I was down, loving me for who I really was and understanding me. You were such a beautiful soul inside and out who always knew how to make me smile through the darkest days. From days where we just sat around and talked deeply about life when shit got hard or did mini photoshoots together, you were always there pushing me. I will never forget the night of Halloween together when you wanted to dress up together as demon circus girls and went trick or treating. Even when I was so bad at makeup then, you brought out the energy and creatively in me. The last I ever saw you, you just ran up and hugged me. Going back through old messages breaks my heart and it’s so hard to know you’re gone. You meant the world and I can’t believe to hear this news...I have no words to express how much this pain is, just numbness... I love you so much and you’ll always going to be in my heart...R.I.P. my dear, Kayla...I hope you’re in peaceful place til I do see you again...you are so loved and I will never ever forget you or all of the times we shared together...you were the light of me and thank you for the memories we shared. You forever have my heart and I’m so going to miss you til we meet again....I know you’ll always shine bright... 💔

My heart goes out to you and your family always ❤️
