Springs of Negev
Vickie Sweeney
Gliding 'cross the crystal sea, when days are easy to embrace,
Floating on still waters, when mornings watch the seagulls chase,
Ripples wave 'cross ponds of light, reflecting beacons of God's grace.
A heartbeat constant, like a faithful oar, draws this life on steady forward,
Gracious mast raised and sailing onward, directed t'ward the faithful face of my Lord,
Keep beating till I reach the other side, where I can rest on His safe and glorious shore.
Resting in the river's cove, shaded by a verdant healing grove,
Sailing under bright rays of sun, where fresh new breezes have begun,
Sweet river calling to my soul, in streams His Word through my veins,
Behold. Word mastering all waters-smooth or rough,
Some days that are easy – some days that are tough,
Merciful waterfall, spring of life, Washed in the blood of my Christ.
