“ I hope yesterday's service for her went well. I wish I could have been there to be with you all, and to share this time of sadness, and to also celebrate what a loving woman my sister was. She was always cheerful in the morning.... She was always there if you needed someone to talk to. I should have talked to her more. I wish the other side of the country was not so far away. At times like this our small world is still too big.

“ My aunt was a wonderful person and gave me my love of cooking. I recently did an Italian dinner for a close friend and made from scratch pasta. I owe her for knowing how to do that. Back in 2000 while I was testing out a college in San Diego my mother and I stopped in Roswell to visit. Auntie Re took the time to teach me to make pasta, we had strings stretched all over her kitchen with spaghetti drying. It was an experience I never forgot. That same trip she took me to find crystals and stones just outside of town. I still have those treasures.

“ Marie Elizabeth Towler (St Martin)

Born March 13, 1945 in Southbridge, Massachusetts

Died February 1, 2018, in Roswell, New Mexico

She was predeceased by her parents, Emma Louise LeBoeuf St Martin and Romeo D. St Martin, a sister, Victoria Louise St Martin Degenhardt, and her first husband, Russell Harman.

She leaves her husband Darrell Towler of Roswell, New Mexico, a sister Rose E. (St Martin) and her husband James A Reith, Sr., their children James, Alex, and Cat, and her sister Vikki's children Lee, and Faith, as well as seven grandnieces and nephews.

Marie worked as a cook and waitress for many years, but far more significant than work, she enjoyed the adventures of “going for rides” with her mother, Emma, who was her travel companion for many years, during which Marie drove from Massachusetts to Alaska along the Alcan Highway, and to many destinations within the 48 United States, including the drive to New Mexico when they moved there in 1984. They even traveled to Hawaii (though that was not a drive but a flight).

“ Another memory of a great time I had with my sister was when we went out to eat at a Chinese restaurant in Ware. We were visiting her friend Yvonne who lived up there. By then I was 16 or so, and Marie was probably 29. As I said, she spoiled me (I have to admit this one actually surprises me, but the 70s were a different time. We decided we were going to have a scorpion bowl. The legal age to drink was 18 at that time, and the waitress carded us. She looked at Marie's licence first - Marie had always looked younger than her age, so after seeing that she was almost 30 the waitress didn't even ask to look at my i.d.! So we had our drink!

“ There are so many things I want to say about my sister Marie, or as I called her ReeRee. She was 13 when I was born, so she was like a second mother to me. She was my Godmother. She spoiled me silly because by the time I was 5 years old she had graduated from college and had her license and a car. She took me so many places and we did so many adventurous things together. I have strong beautiful memories of her from all of those years. When we were younger, we lived on a farm in Charlton, MA. It was a big old house with lots of creaking and groaning. It had a small bathroom put in but when we first lived there it had an original outhouse in the connected barn. It had a big hole and a little hole so she would come out there with me. We had some early sisterly bonding out there! We also shared a room for a while in that house. She used to pay me to make the bed. Once I found a big black spider in the bed. I was hysterical. She came upstairs with me, flipped the sheet over and there was the spider. Not. It was actually a creepy crawly. She accused me of putting it there on purpose. I don't think I did. I don't remember putting it there to be a brat. Maybe I did. But I was a beloved brat! And Marie was my beloved big sister.
