“Where You Are”

I took a walk in the park, the running track after dark... to try to soothe myself... But nothing else... Would help as much as knowing where you are. I can't let you go unless I know where you are. So, please when you get there... Can you tell me where you are?

I loved you as long as I can remember. And I fight so much for you not to leave Because I want you to stay... But I know you're leaving anyway... Anyway... I can't let you go unless I know where you are. So, please when you get there... Can you tell me where you are?

I am who you made me. Yes, I can keep fighting this war... You don't need to fight it anymore. Your battle's done. But, I still can't let you go unless I know where you are. So, please when you get there... Can you tell me where you are?

Very Respectfully, Your son, Vincent D. Espinoza
