She was a hard-working woman, often working multiple jobs. Patricia was employed with the Roswell Independent School District as a Job Coach, ultimately becoming a Special Education Assistant. She adored her students & co-workers, often spoiling them with treats. Pat was very family oriented, always spending time with her three children: Annabelle, Kyler, and Savannah; as well as all her nieces and nephews. She loved doing arts & crafts, playing restaurant, taking them to the park, taking them for ice cream, or having movie nights with them. She always had a house full of kids. Patricia was a social butterfly, always making friends wherever she went, "Add me on snap" were her famous words. She enjoyed social media, always taking selfies and pictures of everyone around her. Some of her favorite past times were reading romance novels, cooking, baking, and playing board games (her favorite was Cards Against Humanity). She loved to attend concerts for all genres of music, but she especially loved her rock music. Pat loved to shop, especially for home goods. She took pride in making sure her home was extravagant and welcoming. She loved getting her nails done, always looking forward to her “Therapy” with her nail tech, Audri. Patricia was an angel. She had a heart of gold, often putting others before herself, constantly going above and beyond for everyone she came across. She was a great listener who gave honest advice and was always there to show support. Patricia was an animal lover, her favorite being cats. She was very intelligent, resilient, and selfless. She could be sarcastic at times and had the best sense of humor.
