“ She was our Grandmother, but she was so much more than that to my sister & myself. She was our best friend our one true constant in this life, the one we could always count on to be there for us day or night, right or wrong. All she ever showed us was true unconditional love & never asked for anything in return. She was our moral compass, my true north. She raised & took care of me from the time I was 3 weeks old until the day she passed on February 17th. She took care of us when we were sick & comforted us when we were hurt & told us when we were wrong, but never did her love for us change. Her daughter Genanne was our mother. She passed away February 1, 2000 & I love & miss her very much but Grams was my mom & I'm glad she's at peace & no longer in pain but the hole that has been left with her absence can never & will never be filled. No one can say for certain that there's something waiting for us when it's all said and done in this life & if anyone claims to know certain then they're either cons or fools. I hope that one day I'll get to see her again but the truth of the matter is I probably won't & it breaks my heart to say that. Grams was the sweetest, most loving & caring person I've ever known. No one can say that they're perfect but she was pretty damn close. In the end I miss my friend, I miss my mom, I miss you Grams. We love you so much Grams and I know that we all hope that one day we can all be together again but... anyways. Until then I love you Grams.
